BSP may greenlight banks' swap of Piltel obligations

By Steve L. Berman

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippine Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is expected to approve a swap of obligations between the Philippine Telecommunications Corporation (Piltel) and several banks, a move that could help the government recover some of the billions of dollars in debt it owes to the telecommunications giant.

The SEC is expected to approve the swap of obligations between Piltel and several banks, a move that could help the government recover some of the billions of dollars in debt it owes to the telecommunications giant.

The swap would allow the banks to take over Piltel's obligations to the government, while the government would take over the banks' obligations to Piltel. This would effectively transfer the debt from the government to the banks, which would then be responsible for repaying it.

The move is seen as a way for the government to reduce its debt burden and improve its financial position. It is also seen as a way for the banks to diversify their portfolios and reduce their risk exposure.

The swap is expected to be completed within the next few months. It is a significant step in the government's efforts to reform the telecommunications sector and improve its financial health.
